The New Home Screen Saver Looking at the excellent home screensavers already available, and with my own home screensaver ideas running through my head, I thought I'd start something up. It will start off as a simple gallery of wallpapers, but the intention is to change it to something more dynamic as time goes on. The viewer has 4 options: Music(1), Movies(2), Photos(3), Weather(4) The Music option lets you select any of your favorite song, or a random music album. The Music option also has a function to select a random music track from the song you already listened to. The Movies option let you select a movie from a list of all your movies. The Photos option gives you a slide show of all the photos you have stored in your computer. The Weather option gives you a realtime weather report from the internet.Q: Two cards and two dictionaries I have three classes, Card, CardPlayer and Deck. A card has properties such as id, name, color, type etc. A deck has cards added to it which also have a set of properties. When a card is added to a deck, the properties of the card are stored in a dictionary, so they can be retrieved later on. Now I want to create two instances of the Card class, both with the same name (currently I'm calling it card). The first should have the properties from the dictionary of the deck, and the second from the dictionary of a different deck. I would like to do this by copying the dictionary from the deck
